

Health without a Home

CLINICAL SOCIETIES

Rethinking Healthcare's Role in Homelessness

Homelessness is a growing issue across our region—with serious implications for both individual and community health.

People experiencing homelessness are more likely to face chronic disease, mental illness and preventable conditions, yet struggle to access timely care. Poor health can be both a cause and a consequence of homelessness, creating a cycle that's difficult to break.

This round of Clinical Societies will explore how clinicians, communities and health systems can work together to address this complex challenge.
