

PSYCHEDELICS

& THE TREATMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH DISORDERS

IN AUSTRALIA

Addressing mental ill-health presents an ongoing challenge for health professionals. Psychedelic-assisted therapies are an emerging area of treatment and becoming conditionally available in Australia. This is a significant shift in the treatment landscape and many health professionals are unfamiliar with their use.

Please join us for an evening of education with one of Australia's leading clinical psychedelic researchers, Dr Paul Liknaitzky. You will have an opportunity to ask questions and connect with other healthcare professionals over drinks and canapes.

DR. PAUL LIKNAITZKY

Dr Paul Liknaitzky is Head of Clinical Psychedelic Research at Monash University, and Chief Principal Investigator of psychedelic trials. His work is focused on evaluating therapeutic effects, innovation of treatment design, mitigating risks, and understanding therapeutic mechanisms.
